FSW's Radiologic Technology Program Application is Available!

Do you want to utilize advanced technology to take images of the body as part of the physician's team?

- Work one-on-one with people?
- Learn and Master the use of technology?
- Evaluate images, discuss and consult with physicians?
- Educate patients on the imaging experience?
- Construct and maintain detailed patient reports?

If so, you may want to work towards becoming a radiologic technologist.

We are now accepting applications until April 30th.

FSW's Radiologic Technology program is 22 months of full-time study. It includes classroom courses on the Lee Campus and extensive clinical laboratory experience in radiology departments at participating clinical affiliates.

To be eligible to apply, you must have successfully completed MAC 1105: College Algebra and BSC 1085C: Anatomy and Physiology I

If you are interested in more information please visit the Radiology Technology Program Page.

Rise Up!: Appropriation vs Appreciation - Online

Appropriation vs Appreciation - There's no question that people can learn a lot from cultures other than their own. We can show appreciation and interest in customs and traditions from around the world. However, if it's not done in a respectful way, it can quickly become appropriation. Let's discuss how we can celebrate one another's cultures in the best ways.
